Kommentar von Bernd Ritschel:

"Ebenfalls ein sehr schönes Landschaftsbild. Die tief stehende Sonne und der blaue Himmel geben der Landschaft etwas warmes, strahlendes. Vielleicht hätte sich jedoch rechts unten der Vordergrund noch etwas konkreter füllen lassen: durch ein Grasbüschel, einen Schatten oder die schwungvolle Linie einer Sanddüne."

ALDEYJARFOSS

BY RAINER GROSSKOPF

This summer I had for the first time the opportunity to travel in the Highlands of Iceland. One of my favorite places to visit was the Aldeyjarfoss waterfall in north-east Iceland at the Sprengisandur road. The waterfall is tumbling through a narrow passage between basalt columns into a wide basin. The contrast of the dark basalt against the thrashing white foam and the symmetrical features make Aldeyjarfoss one of the most impressive waterfalls in Iceland - a photographic gem.

That's a real beauty! I was in Iceland in late Sept but did not make it to Aldeyjarfoss – I put it on the list for the next visit!

CANYONLANDS SUNRISE

BY RAINER GROSSKOPF

This viewpoint is somewhere in no man's land between Dead Horse State Park and Island in the Sky district of Canyonlands Nationalpark. Going there for sunrise from Moab, means to get up pretty early around 4 a.m. The last few miles on dirt roads in darkness are a challenge, but the view compensates for all that.

Equipment: Canon 5D Mark II
